Introduction
The people, the poor, and the oppressed: the concept of popular education through time

Sjaak Braster
pages 1-14

Articles

The concept of popular education revisited – or what do we talk about when we speak of popular education

Alejandro Tiana Ferrer
pages 15-31

Popular education and the logics of schooling

Elsie Rockwell
pages 33-48

La Genese du concept d'éducation publique au Portugal et au Brésil
Ana Waleska Pollo Campos Mendonça & Maria Celi Chaves Vasconcelos

pages 49-63

Schooling as a means of popular education: Pestalozzi’s method as a popular education experiment

Rebekka Horlacher

pages 65-75

Education of poor children as an answer to a social and economic crisis: Dutch local government policies in the eighteenth century

T.W.M. van Gijlswijk

pages 77-90

Poverty, education and gender: pedagogic transformations in the schools for the poor (Armenschulwesen) in Hamburg, 1788–1871

Christine Mayer

pages 91-107

Popular education – rights and duties: school reforms in the Sardinian Kingdom between the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries

Paolo Bianchini

pages 109-121

Ana Isabel Madeira

pages 123-138

Nursery schools for the few or the many? Childhood, education and the State in mid-twentieth-century England

Amy Palmer
“I promised them that I would tell England about them”: a woman teacher activist's life in popular humanitarian education
Sian Roberts
pages 155-172

The American role in education in the Middle East: ideology and experiment, 1920–1940
David M. Ment
pages 173-189

The New Education Fellowship and UNESCO's programme of fundamental education
Joseph Watras
pages 191-205

The Educational Missions under the Second Republic in Spain (1931–1936): a framework for popular education
Eugenio Otero-Urtaza
pages 207-220

Exploring new concepts of popular education: politics, religion and citizenship in the suburban schools of Madrid, 1940–1975
María del Mar del Pozo Andrés & Teresa Rabazas Romero
pages 221-242