Moralizing Cinema
Film, Catholicism, and Power

Edited by Daniel Biltereyst, Ghent University, Belguim and Daniela Treveri Gennari, Oxford Brookes University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Film Studies

"Finally, an investigation that demonstrates the close negotiation between film policies and filmmakers, power and art, ethics and aesthetics, as influenced by a variety of Catholic-inspired initiatives. This is a much-needed intervention into the study of film and culture alike." — Ernest Mathijs, University of British Columbia, Canada

This volume brings together original research on religion and cinema, specifically focusing on the Roman Catholic Church and Catholic organizations and individuals. Contributors look beyond the film text, content, or aesthetics, instead concentrating on the cinema-related actions, strategies, and policies developed by the Catholic Church and Catholic organizations in order to influence cinema. This volume looks at attempts of Roman Catholicism to influence and (as a notoriously complex social institution) "moralize" cinema beyond questions of representation, namely in terms of film policies, distribution, exhibition, censorship, criticism, and other areas of film culture.
