Trading between Architecture and Art
Trading between Architecture and Art

Strategies and Practices of Exchange

Studies in Art and Architecture
Contents

9 The Terms of Trade of Architecture and Art
   Wouter Davidts, Susan Holden, Ashley Paine

17 Art/Architecture/Concept
   Mark Dorrian

27 Pardo’s Plumbing
   Relational Art and Architectural Pavilions
   John Macarthur

40 Open
   John Körmeling

51 Assemble’s Turner Prize
   Utility and Creativity in the Cultural Economy
   Susan Holden

65 Jacques Moeschal, Signal
   Angelique Campens
Failed and Fantastic
Frederick J. Kiesler's Imaging Practices
Mark Linder

Projects 2013–2015
Philip Metten

Warren & Mosley: Within and Beyond Rogue Game
Stephen Walker

The Follies of Conceptual Architecture at Osaka’s Expo ’90
Biwako Otsu Folly, Bolles+Wilson
Annalise Varghese

Massimo Scolari’s Ali and the Institutional Reframing of the Venice Biennale
Léa-Catherine Szacka

Rooms and Clouds
Gerhard Richter and Architecture
Guy Léon Châtel and Wouter Davidts

‘Breuer Revisited’
Creating Value at The Met Breuer
Rosemary Willink

us 10,139,046 B2
Sarah Oppenheimer

Spencer Finch’s Windows
Authenticity and the Reconstructed Interior
Ashley Paine
193  Mies en Abyme
    Architecture and Institutional Critique in Ludger Gerdes’ Bau-Bild Krefeld, Gartenfragment
    Stefaan Vervoort

207  On the Art/Architecture of Reframing an Industrial Site
    Rotor’s ‘Grindbakken’ Exhibition
    Maarten Liefooghe

221  About the Authors
229  Index
235  Acknowledgments
An artist appears in a photograph. On the pavement of 52nd Street in New York, just around the corner from the Museum of Modern Art, he is balancing a makeshift tower on his left hand, not unlike a circus juggler. The tower, made of eighteen square plates supported by drinking glasses at the four corners, resonates with the assorted skyscrapers that flank both sides of the Manhattan street. Anxious but determined, the artist keeps control of the precarious construction, bending his knees slightly. Passers-by seem unconcerned and pay no attention, while the artist, Job Koelewijn, remains deeply engrossed in his own perilous pursuit. We do not know what happens next.¹

Koelewijn performed his A Balancing Act in 1998, during a long-term artist’s residency at PS1. The work gives expression to the uncertainty the artist experienced during his time in New York, intimidated by both the scale and intensity of the city. Steadying the delicate edifice on the palm of his hand, the work points to Koelewijn’s daily efforts to hold his ground as an artist, while maintaining a balance between private possibilities and public demands. Here, architecture serves as a means to reflect on the fate of the artist, and becomes a medium of self-reflection. Koelewijn’s work is demonstrative of just some of the ways in which architecture, building, and the city have become materials for art today. That is, for Koelewijn and many of his contemporaries, architecture is not so much a subject, but a vehicle for practice—a means through which to mobilize thoughts and articulate ideas.

In this light, art and architecture can be seen coming together not in new hybrid or amalgam forms, but as taking part in a process of trade and exchange that, like Koelewijn’s own balancing act, produces particular and often unstable scenarios with unpredictable outcomes. Indeed, it is this exchange of disciplinary concepts and tools that establishes the dynamic scene in which art and architecture meet, intersect, clash or pull away. On this veritable trading floor of culture, artists and architects negotiate that which is of value or at stake: transactions that add up to the ‘terms of trade’ for architecture and art today. And, in much the same way as a nation’s economic terms of trade provide a measure of future financial prospects—not to mention something of the very character of those nations, defined by that which is imported and exported—interrogating the trade between art and architecture can offer unique insights into the opportunities and potentials of contemporary practice.

This practice of trade begins largely in the 1960s, a time marked by many radical and canonical exchanges between artists and architects. Artists took on the conventions, language, and scale of architecture as an integral part of their work, utilizing plans and models, building structures and pavilions, or intervening in urban and public spaces, as a way of critiquing the traditional terms and limits of art. With a similar intensity, architects adopted strategies from the visual arts, planting ‘artistic’ installations in art galleries, making exhibitions, and joining biennales and art events. Through such explorations, architects attempted to break free from functionalist and formalist conventions. Art galleries and museums became accomplices in this trafficking and, by bringing together exemplary practices from both sides of the venture, have redefined the role of the institution in staging and administering disciplinary difference. Since then, architecture and art have become robust trading partners with a great richness and diversity of interaction. Whereas architecture has become a commonplace instrument for artistic research and production, art has in turn offered a rich source for theoretical and formal expansion in architecture. Moreover, many of the resulting projects purposefully suspend the traditional distinctions drawn between the respective disciplines. As Anthony Vidler has argued, such works confront us with a remarkable challenge: “This intersection has engendered a kind of “intermediary art”, comprised of objects that, while situated ostensibly in one practice, require the interpretive terms of another for their explication.”

Hence, as artists and architects exchange means and strategies, the inherited theoretical frames of reference, and our critical vocabularies to describe them, increasingly fall short. In particular, there is a tendency to characterize this proliferation of practices and projects as an ever-expanding field. However, such generalized summations tell us little about the nature of the field itself, its points of intensity and unevenness, or of the specific contests and traits such practices and projects deploy: those frictions that disciplinary distinctions—like differences between close friends—entail.

This book Trading between Architecture and Art contends with the complexity of those dealings between architecture and art, exploring how such transactions have shaped, and at times dislodged, our faith in disciplinary concepts and categories. Indeed, it aims to interrogate the terms and conditions of exchange, and what is at stake in the idea of disciplinary difference, historically and in the present. To this end, the book proceeds via concrete cases. Each contribution focuses on a specific instance of the two-way transaction between architecture and art: artists adopting architectural means on the one hand, and architects adopting artistic strategies on the other. Each essay is conceived as an in-depth examination of those situations where traditional distinctions and disciplinary conventions become interestingly opaque, and meanings provocatively uncertain.

We argue that to start from the cases themselves, on their own terms, is paramount to this endeavor. As such, the general aim of this book is not to approach the cases with pre-established principles and set schemes, but to try to distill original insights from the chosen works as they present themselves to us. As a result, the cases are wide-ranging: some are iconic, others relatively obscure. Certainly, they make an idiosyncratic constellation in the expanding field of practices, spanning a period from the 1930s to the present, albeit with telling concentrations around the 1990s and in the 2000s. Again, this is not meant to propagate the notion of a pluralist fusion that has haunted the exchange between architecture and art ever since the advent of postmodernism. On the contrary, this book is driven by the thought that the most interesting cases in the past decades surpass the historical dream of a symbiosis between both disciplines. Most if not all of the cases discussed in this book pertain to projects within which the differences between architecture and art are put at stake: distinctions here are regarded as generative, rather than as problems to be solved. The works examined also reveal that the trade between architecture and art is rarely reciprocal. Rather, it is fundamentally uneven, and frequently unstable.

In granting these objects—whether artifacts, projects or events—pride of place, we lean heavily on Yve-Alain Bois’ diatribe against what he terms theoreticism:

In fact, the first lesson to be learned from one of the theoreticians most likely to be invoked by theoreticians, Roland Barthes, is that one does not ‘apply’ a theory; that concepts must be forged from the object of one’s inquiry or imported according to that object’s specific exigency; and that the main theoretical act is to define this object, not the other way around.⁶

In many academic spheres today, a truly detailed reading of the actuality and specificity of artifacts has become rare. The prevailing urge to jump straight to the ‘meaning’ of a work makes many miss the critical resonance that a sincere reading might proffer. To this end, each essay in this book begins with a description of its object of scrutiny, whether it is an art exhibition, a pavilion, an installation, a scale model, or a set of collages. Indeed, the variety of these objects, and the singularity of the essays—both written and visual—is key to the conception of the collection. This idea is reinforced by the table of contents wherein all the contributions are listed without hierarchy, headings or other imposed structural articulations—not unlike an old-fashioned mixtape.

Still, in the great variety and richness of examples, some specific insights are revealed by this focused examination of architecture and art’s terms of trade—insights that emerge across and between individual essays. For example, the notion of utility is recognizable as a recurrent topic for a number of authors and artists. Once invoked to draw a line between disciplines (architecture has routinely been described as just ‘sculpture with plumbing’), utility is exposed here as a more complex, sometimes spurious, but often unavoidable topos of contemporary practice, which plays out through the various social, formal, and aesthetic dimensions of both architecture and art. It also complicates the repertoire of how art and architecture are increasingly accounted for and valued in administrative and institutional settings. Ambiguity also arises in relation to the changing institutional and physical contexts of exhibition and display, and a number of contributions to the book examine episodes in the recent resurgence of interest in exhibitions of architecture, whether used as a means to frame and represent specific works and practices, or to create novel works or bodies of original research in their own right. In this context, architecture can be seen as reclaiming ground, in both a literal and metaphorical sense, within and beyond the institutions of art. Tellingly, issues such as utility and display can be seen as some of the common denominators of art and architectural practice today—the very currency of their trade. They are, after all, the kind of concepts and practices that, as one of the authors in this book insists, ‘have no disciplinary home base’. As a compendium, Trading between Architecture and Art aims to enrich an understanding of the potential openings, and possible deadlocks, of such exchanges—to articulate in a specific way what is contested and what is transformed, as means and strategies are displaced, concepts shared, and contexts appropriated. On purpose it abstains from presenting an overarching theory, or an all-embracing diagram that is intended to map, define, or eventually retrace the expanded field of art and architecture as if it were a contiguous whole. It avoids this task in favor of a lively discussion of the terms of such trade. In the end we find that the question of whether a project is either art or non-art, architecture or non-architecture, is not as illuminating as the pattern of disciplinary rivalries that become apparent through an examination of specific cases. The interest, we might say, lies less in how means and strategies mobilize disciplines than the other way around: how disciplinarity is articulated by the contest of concepts and through the trading of practices.

⁶ Yve-Alain Bois, Painting as Model. (Cambridge, MA: MIT Press, 1993), xii.
The Terms of Trade of Architecture and Art

As this book shows, the terms of trade of architecture and art are necessarily worked through in practice, and on a case-by-case basis. Incidentally, in the particularity of this collection of focused studies, we are reminded of another work by Job Koelewijn—a giant wooden stamp made in 2003. With Vicks Vaporub, an ointment rubbed onto children’s chests to cure them of a cough, one can imprint a giant text on the wall of a gallery or art institution. Retrospectively the text serves as a leitmotif, or catchphrase, for every contribution: it reads, ‘Be More Specific’.
Angelique Campens (b. 1980) is an independent art historian, writer, educator, and curator whose research focuses on sculptural concrete, interactions between sculpture and architecture in the twentieth and twenty-first century, and the integration of sculpture in public space. Born in Belgium, she has worked for international museums and public art spaces. She teaches at KASK Ghent and is a PhD candidate in art history. In 2010 she published her first monograph about the architecture of the Belgian Modernist Juliaan Lampens. Campens lives and works in both Turin, Italy and Brussels, Belgium.

Guy Léon Châtel (b. 1956) is an Engineer Architect, Associate Professor at Ghent University, Department of Architecture and Urban Planning, and principal of Labo A conducting applied research on design-oriented issues. He publishes on architecture and art (A+, Janus, DW&B, AS, MDD, Architectural Review Flanders, Cahiers Thématiques AVH-F, Interstices, Oase, San Rocco, EspaceTemps.net). Books include Luc Deleu – T.O.P office: Orban Space
About the Authors

Wouter Davidts (b. 1974) is partner investigator of the ARC funded project ‘Is Architecture Art?’ and teaches at the Department of Architecture & Urban Planning and the Department of Art, Music and Theatre Studies, Ghent University. He has published widely on the museum, contemporary art, and architecture, including Triple Bond (2017), Luc Deleu – t.o.p. office: Orban Space (co-edited with Stefaan Vervoort and Guy Châtel, 2012) and The Fall of the Studio (2009). With Mihnea Mircan and Philip Metten he curated ‘The Corner Show’, Extra City Antwerp, 2015. Davidts lives and works in Antwerp, Belgium.

Mark Dorrian (b. 1964) holds the Forbes Chair in Architecture at the University of Edinburgh and is Co-Director of Metis, an atelier for art and architecture. His research spans topics in architecture and urbanism, cultural history, landscape studies, media theory and visual culture, and his writing has appeared in key international journals in these fields. Books include Writing on The Image: Architecture, the City and the Politics of Representation (2015) and Seeing from Above: The Aerial View in Visual Culture (co-edited with Frédéric Pousin, 2013). He is currently working on the history of sketchbooks. Dorrian lives and works in Edinburgh, United Kingdom.

Susan Holden (b. 1976) is an architect and Senior Lecturer at the University of Queensland. Her research deals broadly with historical and theoretic aspects of architecture as a subject of culture. Her research on architecture and art has considered historical cases from the post-WWII synthesis of the arts and the competition to design the Centre Pompidou to contemporary developments in practice including the proliferation of pavilion architecture. She has published in a range of journals including Journal of Architecture, Leonardo and AA Files, and contributes to the professional journal Architecture Australia. Holden lives and works in Brisbane, Australia.

John Körmeling (b. 1951) studied architecture at the Technische Hogeschool in Eindhoven. His projects and realizations range from visual art, architecture, urban and rural planning to design. In 2010 Körmeling designed the Dutch Pavilion for the World Expo in Shanghai (CN), entitled ‘Happy Street’. The pavilion consisted of 26 elevated small buildings, designed after various Dutch architectural styles, along a main pedestrian strip that curved in a figure eight. Each house was a mini pavilion in itself, exploring themes such as energy, water, space, and other urban issues to achieve a ‘Better City, Better Life’. He lives and works in Eindhoven, the Netherlands.

Maarten Liefooghe (b. 1983) is Assistant Professor in architectural history and theory at Ghent University. His research revolves around encounters between art, architecture, and exhibition and preservation practices. Liefooghe graduated in architecture and engineering in 2006 at Ghent University and T U Berlin. His dissertation, The Monographic Factor (2013), studied the ideology underlying single-artist museums and their institutional and architectural hybridity in between art museums, archives, and an individual’s memorial. He studies contemporary architectural exhibitions as an experimental field in which 1:1 and in situ exhibits formulate alternative approaches to key problems in historic preservation. Liefooghe lives and works in Ghent, Belgium.

Mark Linder (b. 1960) is a Professor at Syracuse University where he was also Chancellor’s Fellow in the Humanities. He has taught at the University of Michigan, Harvard, University of Illinois–Chicago, Rice, IIT, RISD, and UCLA. He wrote Nothing Less than Literal: Architecture after Minimalism (2004) and is completing That’s Brutal, What’s Modern? which argues that the intellectual formation and design practices of the New Brutalism are instances of modern architecture coming to terms with the transdisciplinary question, ‘What would architectural practice become if imaging were its acknowledged means and ends?’ Linder lives and works in Syracuse, United States.

John Macarthur (b. 1958) is Professor of Architecture at the University of Queensland where he teaches history, theory, and design. He is a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Humanities and a Fellow of the Queensland Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was the founding Director of the Research Centre for Architecture, Theory, Criticism and History and remains an active member of the Centre. His research on the intellectual history of architecture has focused on the conceptual framework of the relation of architecture and the visual arts from the Picturesque to the present. Macarthur lives and works in Brisbane, Australia.

Philip Metten (b. 1977) is an artist who freely moves between the respective media and regimes of sculpture and architecture, suspending disciplinary differences. He teaches in the sculpture Department of KASK / School of Arts, Ghent. Metten’s recent projects include the scenography for the group show ‘The Corner Show’, Extra City Kunsthall, Antwerp, 2015; a new façade for the Kai Matsumiya gallery 153. Stanton, New York, 2015; and the interior for the restaurant essen, Borgerhout, 2019. In May 2019, he has a solo show at Zeno X Gallery, Antwerp. Metten lives and works in Antwerp, Belgium.

Sarah Oppenheimer (b. 1972) is an artist whose work explores the built environment as an orchestrated field of stasis and change. Oppenheimer is a Senior Critic at the Yale University School of Art. Recent solo exhibitions include ‘s-399390’, Mudam Luxembourg, 2016, ‘s-281913’ at Pérez Art Museum Miami, 2016 and ‘s-337473’ at Wexner Center for the Arts, Columbus, 2017. Oppenheimer lives and works in New York City, United States.

Ashley Paine (b. 1979) is a Senior Lecturer at the University of Queensland. His recent research and publications have examined topics as diverse as the history of striped façades, the collection and reconstruction of architecture in museums, contemporary pavilions, and the posthumously built works of Frank Lloyd Wright. He has contributed to journals including AA Files, ARQ, The Architectural Review, and Interstices, and is co-author of the book Pavilion Proposition: Nine Points on an Architectural Phenomenon. Paine is also a practicing architect, and co-founder of the Brisbane-based practice PHAB Architects. Paine lives and works in Brisbane, Australia.
Léa-Catherine Szacka (b. 1979) is Lecturer in Architectural Studies at the University of Manchester and Visiting Lecturer at Harvard GSD. Szacka’s work focuses on the history of architecture exhibitions and postmodern architecture. Work includes Mediated Messages: Periodicals, Exhibitions and the Shaping of Postmodern Architecture (co-edited with Véronique Patteeuw, 2018), Concrete Oslo (co-edited with Erik Langdalen and Andrea Pinochet, 2018), Le Concert: Pink Floyd à Venise (2017), Exhibiting the Postmodern: The 1980 Venice Architecture Biennale (2016, winner of the SAHGB Alice Davis Hitchcock Medallion). She sits on the editorial boards of Footprint and Architectural History. Szacka lives and works in Manchester, United Kingdom.

Annalise Varghese (b. 1992) is a PhD candidate at the University of Queensland and part of the ARC funded project ‘Is Architecture Art? A history of categories, concepts and recent practises.’ Her research orbits conceptual architectural practices, with regard to the architectural pavilion and its rising presence in the contemporary design sphere. Varghese explores the pavilion’s indeterminate and shifting identity over time, as a form somewhere between art and architecture, with equal footing in physical and virtual domains—presenting and publishing her early research findings through international conferences: SAHANZ and AHRA in 2017. Varghese lives and works in Brisbane, Australia.

Stefaan Vervoort (b. 1986) is a PhD candidate at the Department of Architecture and Urban Planning, Ghent University. His research focuses on the exchange between postwar art and architecture, specifically on architectural scale models and postmodern architecture theory in the 1980s. visual arts. Recent publications include Aglaia Konrad from A to K (co-edited with Emiliano Battista, 2016); Raymond Barion (co-edited with Mihnea Mircan and Stijn Maes, 2014); and Luc Deleu – t.o.p. office: Orban Space (co-edited with Wouter Davidts and Guy Châtel, 2012). Vervoort lives in Antwerp and works in Brussels and Ghent, Belgium.

Stephen Walker (b. 1966) is currently Head of Architecture at the University of Manchester. His research draws upon architectural and critical theory and examines the questions that theoretical projects can raise about particular moments of architectural and artistic practice. A developing methodology has brought together aspects of theory with a broad range of practical work including Mediaeval Breton architecture, ring-roads and the work of contemporary artists (in particular Gordon Matta-Clark, Helen Chadwick, about whom he has published widely, and more recently, Warren and Mosley). Walker lives in Sheffield and works in Manchester, United Kingdom.

Rosemary Willink (b. 1988) is a PhD candidate in the School of Architecture at the University of Queensland and part of the ARC Discovery Project ‘Is Architecture Art? A history of categories, concepts and recent practices’. With prior experience working in cultural institutions in Australia, Europe and the United Kingdom, Willink’s research focuses on how museums and galleries collect, curate and commission architecture. Her qualifications include a Masters of Contemporary Art from Sotheby’s Institute and a Bachelor of Music Performance from the Victorian College of the Arts. Willink lives and works in both Brisbane, Australia and Washington D.C, United States.
Index

'1:1 Period Rooms' 184, 185
'5th International Architecture Exhibition' 121, 126, 127

AAM Galleria, Rome IT 129
Abraham, Raymond 129
Adam, Robert 99
Apec, James 82
Alsop, Will 18
Altay, Can 97
Aligs, Francis 217
Amsterdam Museum, NL 185
Angelidakis, Andreas 184, 185
Ant Farm 18
Apollo Galerie, Brussels BE 67
Appleyard, Donald 70
Architectural Association (AA), London UK 17, 24, 109, 112, 114
Archizoom 18
Arrhenius, Thordis 212
Art Academy Düsseldorf, DE 195, 202
Art Basel Unlimited, CH 181
Art Net Gallery, London UK 17
Art of this Century Gallery, New York US 80
Arts Council England (ACE), UK 61
Asher, Michael 105, 200–203
Asociación de Arte Útil (Office of Useful Art) 53, 61
Assemble 51–56, 58–62
Atkinson, Dennis 103, 104
'Atlas van de foto's en schetsen' 133

Balmond, Cecil 36
Banham, Reyner 18, 23
Barbato, Daniello 79
Barbican, London UK 209
Barcelona Pavilion, ES 196
Bartellì, Carlo 125
Barthes, Roland 13, 204, 214
Battenz, Abé Charles 53
Bauhaus 69, 145
Bayer, Herbert 69
Beaufort Triennale, BE 218

Behind the Green Door' 209
Behrens, Peter 82
Benjamin, Walter 35, 83, 141, 214
Biesenbach, Klaus 217
Billiet, Lionel 208
Binet, Hélène 109, 110, 117–119
Bishop, Claire 35, 37, 38, 56, 59, 60, 150
Blazwick, Iwona 134, 136
Bloe, André 67
Bois, Yve-Alain 13
Bolles, Julia 112
Bolles-Wilson 109–113, 115, 117, 118
Bonieer, Tristan 208
Bonvicini, Monica 217
Borass, Giovanna 59
Bötticher, Karl 128
Boullée, Étienne-Louis 22
Bourriaud, Nicolas 30, 34, 35, 37, 56, 58
Boyarski, Alvin 109, 110
Branningan, Bud 184
Branzi, Andrea 109
Breuer, Marcel 145–155
'Breuer Revisited: New Photographs by Luisa Lambri and Bas Princen' 145–150, 152, 154, 155
Brick Country House project 194, 197, 200
Broodthaers, Marcel 202, 204
Bruges Triennale, BE 218
Brugueras, Tania 53
Brunelleschi, Filippo 83
Buchloh, Benjamin H. D. 96, 105, 133, 134, 140, 142, 143, 200, 202, 213
Buren, Daniel 105, 195, 200–204
Burzin, Victor 18

Canadian Centre for Architecture, Montreal CA 59
Canaletto (Giovanni Antonio Canal) 195
Casco Art Institute, Utrecht NL 97
Castelli Gallery, Leo, New York US 115
Centre Pompidou, Paris FR 129
Chaplin, Charlie 82
Christo (Christo Vladimirov Javacheff) 197
'c/o Haus Esters' 193, 200
Index

Jacobs, Steven 139
Jencks, Charles 17, 18, 198, 199
Jones, Lewis 56, 58
Joselit, David 155
Kant, Immanuel 29, 33–35
Kapoor, Anish 61
Kempes, Jan 86
Kennedy, Jackie 186
Kerin Roche John Dinkeloo and Associates 183
Kiesler, Frederick 37, 75–85
Kiesler, Frederick and Lillian Private Foundation, Vienna AT 141
Klein, Robert 141
Klein, Yves 36, 197
Klingelhöller, Harald 193, 202
Kobayashi, Koji 110, 117, 118
Koelewijn, Job 9, 10, 15
Kölner Kunstverein, Cologne DE 30
Koolhaas, Rem 36
Krauss, Rosalind 11, 29, 200, 214
Krier, Léon 199
Kunstverein, Düsseldorf DE 136
Kunst-Werke (KW Institute for Contemporary Art), Berlin DE 217
Kürster, Kerstin 136
Laan, Barbara 189
Laboratory of Design Correlation, Columbia University, New York US 75, 78–80
Lambri, Luisa 145–147, 149, 155
Lange, Hermann 196
Lapena & Torres 109
Lapin, Silvia 33, 117, 118
Le Corbusier (Charles-Édouard Jeanneret-Grise) 123, 212, 213
Leibovitz, Liz 99
LeWitt, Sol 37, 197
Libeskind, Daniel 109, 115, 117, 118
Lissitzky, El (Lazar Markovitsj Lisitski) 99
Liverpool Mutual Homes, UK 55
London Legacy Development Corporation, UK 61
Lorenzen, Paul 195
Los Angeles County Museum (LACMA), US 151
Lutter, Vera 151
Luy, Wolfgang 193
Macarthur, John 29
Macdonald and Salter 109
Macken, Marian 99, 100
Macedo, Benedicto de 194
Mairiaux, Eric 209, 214
Malevich, Kazimir 195
Mallet-Stevens, Robert 83
Malraux, André 83
Manifesta biennale, Palermo IT 218
Maranzano, Attilio 133
Margules, John 18
Matt Clark, Gordon 31, 53
Maxwell, Robert 18, 21
Meesterproof 2010 competition 208
Melsens, Sarah 151
Met Cloisters, The, New York US 148, 154
Metropolitan Museum of Art (MET), New York US 146, 148, 149, 198
Middlesex Institute of Contemporary Art (MIMA), UK 53, 61
Mies van der Rohe, Ludwig 83, 193, 196–199
Milan Polytechnic Architecture School, IT 122, 123
Ministry of Public Works, BE 66
Modern House, The, London UK 61
Moholy-Nagy, László 83
Moo, Stanislaus von 212
Morris & Co. 57
Morris, William 57, 59
Morton, Callum 29
Mosley, Jonathan 97, 103
Moussiaux, Gustave 65
Munch, Reinhard 193
MUF, London UK 58
Münster City Library, DE 111, 112, 195
Museum of Modern Art (MoMA), New York US 9, 115, 129, 149, 198
Nauman, Bruce 208
neugerriemschneider Gallery, Berlin DE 27, 28, 31
Nieuwe Instituut, Het, Rotterdam NL 184, 185, 190
Ninja, The project 112
Nobel Prize for Literature 52
Novel, Jean 32
Obrist, Hans-Ulrich 138, 143
Olfi, Chris 51
Olley, Margaret 184
‘OMA/Progress’ 209, 218
Omega Workshops, London UK 59
‘Osaka Follies’ 109, 111, 113–116, 118, 119
Oslo Architecture Triennale, NO 209
Otero Versin, Marina 32
‘Other Architect, The’ 59
Pacioli, Luca 154
Palermo, Blinky 137
Paoletti, Eduardo 59
Pardo, Jorge 27–31, 34, 37, 38, 53
Patetta, Luciano 123
Penone, Giuseppe 52
Pereira, William 151
Pevsner, Nikolaus 19
Piano, Renzo 146, 152, 153
Pimlott, Mark 117
Plus Dane 55
‘Political/Minimal’ 217
Polke, Sigmar 138, 152, 195
Popper, Karl 195
Portoghesi, Paolo 123, 126
Price, Cedric 18, 23, 116
Princen, Bas 145, 147–150, 154, 155
PS1, Long Island City US 9, 214
Quaintance, Morgan 52, 53, 58
Queensland Art Gallery, Brisbane AU 187
Quetsglas, José 200
Radics, Smiljan 37
Rancière, Jacques 62, 82
Read, Herbert 59
Richards, Jim 23
Richter, Gerhard 133–143, 152, 195, 202
Index

Rietveld Academy, Amsterdam NL 10
Robbrecht, Paul 134
Robbrecht en Daem 133, 134
Rode, August 194, 195
Rogers, Ernesto Nathan 123
‘Rogue Game’ 97–99, 101–106
‘Rooms’ 137–139, 143, 214
Röntgen, Wilhelm 79
Ross, Toni 35, 38
Rossi, Aldo 122, 123, 126, 127, 199
Rothko, Mark 217
Rover, Colin 18
Royaumont cultural center, FR 72
Ruscha, Ed 19
Ruskin, John 57, 59
Ruta de la Amistad, La (the Road of Friendship) project 66, 72
Rykwert, Joseph 18
Salter, Peter 109
Samek, Tomasz 118
Schiller, Friedrich 35
Schlenzka, Jenny 217
Schütte, Thomas 193, 202
Scialici, Massimo 121–131
Sedlmayr, Hans 140, 141
Selgascano 32
Semper, Gottfried 128
Serrano, Richard 99, 101, 102
Sheraton, Thomas 99, 101, 102
Sherer, Daniel 125, 130, 131
Shinkenchiku Residential Design competition 112
Shop at Howgill, The project 57
Showroom Gallery, The, London UK 97, 103,
Simmel, Georg 215
Skias, Thomas 79
Smith, Chris 60, 61
Smith, Hamilton 146
Smithson, Alison and Peter 23, 70
Soane, John 99
Sotheby’s 151
Spier, Albert 139
Spike Island Gallery, Bristol UK 97, 98, 102, 105
Sportcentrum Olympos, Utrecht NL 97
Städtische Galerie Lenbachhaus, München DE 136
Städtisches Museum Abteiberg, Mönchengladbach DE 134
Sterling, Simon 52
Stedelijk Museum, Amsterdam NL 185
Steckel, John 18, 22
Steinbeck Studio, London UK 55
Stiftung Kunstfonds, Bonn DE 194, 195, 203
Stirling, James 18, 23
Sugarhouse Studios, Stratford UK 61
Suzuki House project 111
Suzuki, Ryōji 109
Szekely, Pierre 71, 72
Tafuri, Manfredo 140
Taki, Koji 116
Tam, Melanie 208

Tate Gallery, London UK 51, 135, 139
Tegethoff, Wolf 197, 198, 200
Tiirvanen, Ritwik 30, 34, 35, 37
Tramway Gallery, Glasgow UK 51, 55
Tschumi, Bernard 18, 22, 24, 115
Turner Prize 51–55, 57, 59, 61, 62
Turrell, James 187, 188
Tweed Regional Gallery, Murwillumbah AU 184
‘Use Me’ project 207, 208, 210–212
‘Usus/Usures’ 209, 218,
Van Orman Quine, Willard 195
Vanderbilt Whitney, Gertrude 146
Vattimo, Gianni 129, 130
Venice Biennale 121, 126, 127, 130
Venturi, Robert 199
Verschaffel, Bart 218
Vesely, Dalibor 18
Vidler, Anthony 11
Vision Machine project 75–78, 80–84
Wagstaff, Sheena 152, 153
Walker Art Center, Minneapolis US 18
Walker, Stephen 98
Warburg, Aby 83
Warren & Mosley 97–99, 101–106
Water House project 111
Weiner, Lawrence 213
Weiss, David 37
Weissenhof Estate, Stuttgart DE 196
‘Western Objects Eastern Fields’ 112
Wezler, Alan 29
Whitbread, Rachel 52
Wilson, Peter 112, 119
Wright, Frank Lloyd 183, 184
Württembergischer Kunstverein, Stuttgart DE 136
Yale School of Architecture’s Gallery, New Haven US 129
Yardhouse, Stratford UK 61
Yatsuka, Haje 109
Ziehe, Jens 27
Zimmerman, Claire 147, 150
Zittel, Andrea 29
Zumthor, Peter 33
Acknowledgments

This publication is an outcome of the conference, ‘Inside | Outside: Trading between Art and Architecture’, convened by Wouter Davidts, John Macarthur, Susan Holden, and Ashley Paine, and held in Ghent, 4–6 May 2017. The conference was organized in collaboration with the Royal Academy of Fine Arts (KASK), School of Arts, Ghent.

‘Inside | Outside’ was the inaugural event of ‘Is Architecture Art?: A history of categories, concepts and recent practices’, a research project of the Centre for Architecture, Theory, History and Criticism (ATCH), at the University of Queensland (UQ) in partnership with the Department of Architecture & Urban Planning, Ghent University (UGent). The project is funded by The University of Queensland, Ghent University, and the Australian Research Council (ARC) through Discovery Grant (DP160101569) led by John Macarthur (Chief Investigator, UQ), with Susan Holden (Chief Investigator, UQ), Ashley Paine (Chief Investigator, UQ) and Wouter Davidts (Partner Investigator, UGent).
Acknowledgments

The conference organizers are grateful for the generous support of Archipel. Much gratitude also goes to Wim De Temmerman, Katrien Vuylsteke Vanfleteren, Liene Aerts, Laurent Derycke and the team of Kask café at Kask School of Arts for providing the best possible conditions for hosting the conference, as well as to Philip Metten and the artist’s Kask-funded research project for providing additional funds. Hong Wan Chan deserves a special mention for her meticulous assistance in organizing the conference. Thanks also go to the session chairs, Bart Verschaffel, Steven Jacobs, and Catharina Gabrielsson, and to Wouter Van Acker and Lara Schrijver for acting as respondents.

The editors wish to thank John Macarthur at UQ for leading the larger research project, and Macarena de la Vega de León from Aitch for acting as the final gatekeeper for the manuscripts and illustrations prior to publication. We also thank Sandra Kaji-O’Grady who, as the Head of the School of Architecture at UQ, secured the University funding. At Valiz we wish to thank Astrid Vorstermans for her ongoing belief in the book project (and for her support in getting it done), as well as Pia Pol and Sarah van Binsbergen for making it possible. Leo Reijnen, Els Brinkman and Elke Stevens we wish to thank for their careful attention to the manuscript, and Sam de Groot for providing our book with its exquisite design. Finally we wish to thank all the contributors for staying with us from conference to book.
Editors: Wouter Davidts, Susan Holden, Ashley Paine
Visual essays: John Körmeling, Philip Metten, Sarah Oppenheimer
Editorial assistant: Macarena de la Vega de León
Copy-editing: Leo Reijnen
Proofreading: Els Brinkman
Index: Elke Stevens
Design: Sam de Groot
Typefaces: Eldorado (William Addison Dwiggins, 1953), Computer Modern (Donald Knuth, 1984), SKI DATA (Tariq Heijboer, 2014)
Printing and binding: Bariet/Ten Brink, Meppel
Production: Till Hormann, Sarah van Binsbergen
Publisher: Astrid Vorstermans, Valiz, Amsterdam, <www.valiz.nl>

Publishing Partners
The Australian Research Council
The University of Queensland
Ghent University
KASK School of Arts

Project’s financial support
Discovery Grant (DP160101569) of the Australian Research Council (ARC), and The University of Queensland’s School of Architecture and Centre for Architecture Theory Criticism History (ATCH)
Creative Commons cc–by–nc–nd

For all images and the visual essays of John Körmeling, Philip Metten, and Sarah Oppenheimer: © all rights reserved.

Distribution
USA: DAP, <www.artbook.com>
NL/BE/LU: Centraal Boekhuis, <www.cb.nl>
Europe/Asia: Idea Books, <www.ideabooks.nl>
Australia: Perimeter, <www.perimeterdistribution.com>
Individual orders: <www.valiz.nl>

This book has been produced on FSC-certified paper.

Printed and bound in the EU, 2019
The vis-à-vis series provides a platform to stimulating and relevant subjects in recent and emerging visual arts, architecture and design. The authors relate to history and art history, to other authors, to recent topics and to the reader. Most are academic researchers. What binds them is a visual way of thinking, an undaunted treatment of the subject matter and a skilful, creative style of writing.

2015

2016

2017

2018

2019